

MattaNutra Business Process Roadmap

This document describes the MattaNutra customer and business process in business terms. It focuses on the decisions we need customers to make, the value we need to prove at each point, and the weaknesses that may reduce conversion. It intentionally avoids internal process detail.

Status Legend

Status	Meaning
Done	Present in the current product
Partial	Present but incomplete, unproven, or dependent on another decision
Pending	Not live yet

Executive Summary

MattaNutra currently has the core shape of a commercial wellness journey:

1. A visitor can start an anonymous assessment.
2. The assessment produces a HealthScore.
3. The HealthScore creates a moment to choose between a free email preview, Precision Plan, or Pro Plan.
4. A paid user can receive a full personalised nutritional formulation.
5. A free user can receive a smaller email preview and be invited back.
6. Users can be invited into chat and future reassessment.

The strongest parts of the current journey are the anonymous assessment, HealthScore, plan gate, formulation page, free email path, and 60-day reassessment concept.

The weakest commercial points are payment activation, proof of product trust, live advisor value, product matching, and clear safety governance. These are the areas most likely to block conversion or create risk as traffic grows.

Sales Funnel View

MattaNutra should be read as a trust-building funnel, not only as an assessment tool. Each step must earn the right to ask for the next step.

Funnel Stage	Customer Mindset	Business Goal	Current Strength	Main Weakness	Suggested Tune
Awareness	"Is this relevant to me?"	Get the right visitors to start	Clear wellness and personalisation promise	Need stronger proof and education content	Use specific, relatable use cases: energy, longevity, sleep, budget-conscious guidance
Assessment start	"Will this waste my time?"	Reduce friction and fear	Anonymous, structured, low-pressure	Risk of feeling like a long form	Show time expectation, privacy reassurance, and progress clearly
Assessment completion	"Was this worth doing?"	Create anticipation	Good data capture	Some optional detail may feel cognitively heavy	Make optional precision feel like a benefit, not homework
HealthScore	"Did it understand	Deliver pre-payment value	Strong conversion moment already	Needs sharper insight hierarchy	Lead with the one insight most likely to make the user

Funnel Stage	Customer Mindset	Business Goal	Current Strength	Main Weakness	Suggested Tune
	me?"		exists		care
Free preview	"Can I try before buying?"	Capture lead and nurture	Good fallback path	The free value boundary is not yet defined	Make the preview useful but clearly incomplete
Precision Plan	"Is this worth a one-time payment?"	Convert intent into revenue	Clear one-time product	Payment not active; product value needs proof	Show exact unlocks: formulation, dose logic, product guidance, reassessment
Pro Plan	"Why pay monthly?"	Create recurring revenue	Strong idea: ongoing advisor	Promise is still abstract	Show daily-life examples: travel, meals, sleep changes, training days
Results page	"Can I act on this?"	Deliver satisfaction and confidence	Full formulation exists	Product trust is partial	Make benefits, dose, timing, and product form very easy to scan
Product purchase	"Can I trust this product?"	Capture affiliate value	Commercial path identified	Trusted product guidance not live	Build quality proof into recommendations before scaling
Follow-up	"Is this helping over time?"	Increase retention and reactivation	60-day reassessment concept exists	Broader nurture not defined	Use score movement as the reason to return

Business Journey

Main Customer Decision Points

Decision Point	Customer Question	Current State	Business Critique
Landing page	"Is this for someone like me?"	Done	The brand and CTA exist, but the page must quickly prove personalisation and trust.
Assessment start	"Is this safe and worth my time?"	Done	The anonymous positioning helps. The business should keep the assessment short enough to avoid fatigue.
Assessment completion	"Have I given enough useful information?"	Done	The flow captures good data, but formal sanity and high-risk checks are still incomplete.
HealthScore	"Did MattaNutra understand me?"	Done	This is the key pre-payment value moment. It should be sharpened into the strongest conversion asset.
Free preview	"Can I get value without paying yet?"	Done	Good lead capture path. The business must decide exactly how generous the free preview should be.
Paid plan choice	"Is the full plan worth paying for?"	Partial	The plans exist, but payment is not live and the value difference between Precision and Pro needs sharper proof.
Full formulation	"Is this specific, practical, and safe?"	Done	The result exists. The business should continue simplifying the explanation of benefits, dose, timing, and practical use.
Product recommendations	"Can I trust what to buy?"	Partial	This is commercially important but not yet strong as trusted buying guidance. Without trust, affiliate conversion will suffer.
Advisor chat	"Can I get help adapting this to real life?"	Partial	Chat CTA exists, but the advisor experience is not yet proven as a paid Pro benefit.
Reassessment	"Will this improve over time?"	Done for first reminder	Strong retention concept. Wider lifecycle follow-up is still undefined.

Conversion and Service Levers

Lever	Why It Helps Conversion	Why It Helps Satisfaction	Suggested Change
Make the HealthScore more explanatory	Users need a reason to continue	Users feel understood, not scored generically	Add one plain-language "what is holding you back most" insight near the score
Show paid value before price	Reduces price resistance	Makes the purchase feel informed	Use a concise "what unlocks" comparison between free, Precision, and Pro
Give the free path a clear next step	Prevents free users from disappearing	Makes the free experience feel complete	After the email preview, invite the user to improve one score area and return in 60 days
Make Pro use cases concrete	Helps justify recurring payment	Sets expectations for service	Show examples: "What should I take on a poor sleep day?", "How do I adjust while travelling?"

Lever	Why It Helps Conversion	Why It Helps Satisfaction	Suggested Change
Make product recommendations trustworthy	Supports affiliate conversion	Reduces buyer anxiety	Show quality criteria, coverage, form, and price confidence
Connect chat with the plan	Increases engagement after result	Avoids making the user repeat themselves	Make the plan reference visible and explain what the advisor can do with it
Make safety visible but calm	Builds trust without scaring users	Protects the user and brand	Use plain wellness disclaimers and stop-condition messaging where needed

Current Commercial Flow

Path Critique

Free Preview Path

Business purpose: capture skeptical users who are not ready to pay.

What works:

- Low-friction email capture.
- Gives the customer a useful next step without forcing payment.
- Keeps a relationship open through the 60-day reassessment idea.
- Creates another chance to convert after the user sees value.

Weaknesses:

- The free preview must not feel too small or it will be ignored.
- It must not give away so much that Precision feels unnecessary.
- The follow-up strategy after the first email is not yet strong enough.
- Chat from the free path is promising, but plan handoff must feel effortless.

Business decision needed:

- Define the exact free preview promise: "3-point nutrition plan", "3 most important next steps", or another offer.
- Decide how soon and how often free users should be followed up.

Precision Plan Path

Business purpose: convert users who want a complete, one-time personalised formulation.

What works:

- Clear one-time paid option.
- Good fit for customers with medium budget and moderate skepticism.
- Full formulation is already a meaningful paid deliverable.

Weaknesses:

- Payment is not active, so conversion cannot yet be measured.
- Product recommendations are not yet strong enough to carry affiliate revenue.
- Paid users need a reliable reassessment contact method.
- The page must make the paid value clearly better than the free preview.

Business decision needed:

- Confirm price, refund promise, and what exactly is included.
- Decide whether paid users must provide email before or during payment.
- Decide how product trust will be communicated.

Pro Plan Path

Business purpose: create recurring revenue through ongoing advisor support.

What works:

- Pro has a clear strategic role: ongoing support and refinement.
- Chat is a natural channel for Thai and mobile-first customers.
- The plan can become more valuable over time through reassessment.

Weaknesses:

- "AI advisor" is not yet a concrete enough paid promise.
- The business needs examples of what the advisor actually helps with.
- Chat connection exists, but the full advisor workflow is not proven.

- Subscription payment is not active.

Business decision needed:

- Define the Pro service promise in plain customer language.
- Choose the first chat channel to make excellent.
- Decide whether Pro includes AI only, human escalation, or both.

Key Process Weaknesses

Weakness	Why It Matters	Business Risk
Payment is not live	Paid conversion cannot be tested	Revenue path is unproven
HealthScore value is not yet optimised	This is the main conversion trigger	Users may choose free or leave
Safety rules are incomplete	Wellness trust depends on responsible boundaries	Regulatory, reputation, and customer risk
Product matching is not live	Affiliate revenue depends on trusted buying guidance	Users may buy elsewhere or not buy at all
Pro promise is vague	Recurring revenue needs clear ongoing value	Users may choose Precision instead
Advisor handoff is not seamless	Chat should feel personal and connected to the plan	Users may drop before engagement
Follow-up cadence is undefined	Leads need nurturing after the free preview	Email capture may not convert
Blog/content acquisition is not live	The site needs education and search traffic	Paid traffic may carry too much burden

Funnel Metrics to Watch

These are the simplest business numbers to add once measurement is ready.

Metric	What It Reveals	Healthy Direction
Landing to assessment start	Whether the promise and CTA are compelling	Up
Assessment start to completion	Whether the questionnaire feels worth finishing	Up
Completion to HealthScore view	Whether the transition works reliably	Up
HealthScore to free preview	Whether skeptical users are being captured	Up, but not at the expense of paid conversion
HealthScore to paid plan	Whether the score creates enough purchase intent	Up
Free preview to later paid plan	Whether email nurture works	Up
Precision to Pro mix	Whether Pro has a clear enough value proposition	Depends on strategy, but should be intentional
Results page to chat	Whether users want ongoing support	Up for Pro, moderate for Precision
Results page to product click	Whether product guidance feels trustworthy	Up

Metric	What It Reveals	Healthy Direction
60-day return rate	Whether reassessment is meaningful	Up
Refunds or complaints	Whether expectations are mismatched	Down

Customer Satisfaction Principles

- Give the customer a useful result even if they do not pay.
- Never make the customer feel trapped in a health claim or fear-based sale.
- Explain why each recommendation exists in practical language.
- Keep the plan realistic for budget, pill burden, diet, and lifestyle.
- Make it easy to ask "what should I do today?" after the formulation.
- Make returning feel natural: "your score changes as your life changes."

Business Priorities

1. Make the HealthScore a Conversion Asset

The HealthScore should not just be a score. It should create a persuasive reason to continue.

Business questions:

- What is the most compelling insight shown with the score?
- Should the page lead with lowest domain, biggest improvement opportunity, or comparison to peers?
- What should the customer believe after seeing the score?

2. Define the Free Preview Boundary

The free preview is a lead magnet, not the product.

Business questions:

- What exactly is included?
- What is held back for paid plans?
- What follow-up sequence should start after the free preview?

3. Activate the Paid Plan Moment

Precision and Pro must have a clean purchase decision.

Business questions:

- What payment methods are essential for Thai customers?
- What refund or satisfaction promise reduces hesitation?
- Should payment happen before or after showing a deeper teaser?

4. Make Product Trust Visible

The formulation creates intent. Product guidance captures commercial value.

Business questions:

- What makes a product "trusted"?
- How should quality, coverage, form, and price be explained?
- How should the business handle cases where no good product match exists?

5. Make Pro Tangible

Pro should feel like an ongoing wellness companion, not just a more expensive version of Precision.

Business questions:

- What are the top five real-life advisor use cases?
- Which channel should be prioritised first?
- Should Pro include human review or escalation?

Recommended Next Business Sequence

1. Finalise the HealthScore conversion message.
2. Define the free preview content boundary.
3. Activate payment for Precision and Pro.
4. Define safety stop rules and customer-facing safety messages.
5. Create the first trusted product recommendation standard.
6. Make one chat channel work end-to-end.
7. Define the Pro service promise.
8. Build the first follow-up sequence after free preview.
9. Add blog and educational content for acquisition.
10. Add funnel reporting so the team can see where customers drop.

One-Line Business Process

MattaNutra earns trust with an anonymous assessment and HealthScore, converts customers through either a free preview or paid plan, then uses formulation, product guidance, advisor support, and reassessment to build an ongoing wellness relationship.
